Teaching Experience:

Core Faculty Member & Director of Practica	Antioch University New England (formerly Antioch New England Graduate School) Keene, New Hampshire	July 1990 - Present
---	--	---------------------

Current teaching responsibilities in this Doctor of Psychology program consist of a year-long Case Conference for third-year students, Supervision and Management courses for third and fourth year students respectively, Group Theory and Practice for second year students, and an Advanced Group Therapy or Advanced Supervision elective. Administrative responsibilities include developing policies for and organizing a large practicum system throughout New England for over 50 students a year, providing guidance for as well as monitoring practicum applications and performance, and serving as Chair of the Admissions Committee since 1995. From July, 1990, until July, 1992, I was also Director of Internships.

Associate Faculty Member	Antioch New England Graduate School Keene, NH	September 1989 - June 1990
---------------------------------	---	-------------------------------

Teaching responsibilities in this Doctor of Psychology program consisted of a year-long Professional Seminar for third-year students and a year-long course in Psychological Assessment for second-year students. The Professional Seminar is a clinically oriented course in which students present cases from their practica. My role was teacher, supervisor, and liaison with the practica.
